

ARE THEY FIREBUGS?

Two Men Suspected of Trying to Burn Up Brooklyn. Locked Up in Jail Pending a Full Investigation.

Thrilling Scenes at the Seven Incendiary Fires of Saturday Night.

George Perkins and Thomas Connolly, two men suspected of trying to burn up Brooklyn, were locked up in jail pending a full investigation. The two men were arrested early Sunday morning on the suspicion of setting a series of fires within a few blocks of each other in Smith street, Atlantic avenue and Warren and State streets, between 7:30 Saturday night and 1:30 Sunday morning.

No less than seven fires broke out, and were started in cellars of tenement houses, where many families were housed, and where, if a blaze had broken out, they would have involved serious consequences. At 80 Smith street the first of the seven fires was discovered at 7:35 o'clock. A bundle of smoldering rags was found beneath the cellar stairs in a small room. The third alarm sounded about 10 o'clock p. m. for a blaze in Mrs. O'Brien's cellar, corner of Pacific and Smith streets. Mrs. O'Brien's ten-year-old child discovered the blaze when she opened the cellar door.

The two men noticed the other fire were again on the spot, but they did not attempt to get behind the bars. These three alarms made Brooklyn's firemen suspicious, and they spotted one of the two men and had Officer Storck, of the Butler street precinct, arrest him. His name was George Perkins, twenty-five years old, living at 330 Decatur street. He was locked up, but the fire-bells kept ringing.

An hour later an alarm called the Department to the four-story tenement 404 Warren street, belonging to George F. Bohlen. The cellar was the place of the fire, and the firemen found burned paper and matches on the floor.

A bale of hay was set on fire in Richardson's stable, 205 and 197 State street, at 12:15 A. M., and the firemen were called out for the sixth time. A big blaze was extinguished without much damage.

The climax came at 1:30 A. M., when the force was called to the 425 Atlantic avenue, where a fire broke out in the cellar. This time it was serious work for the fire-fighters, and the blaze was extinguished after a long struggle.

In the four floors above were scores of homes, being a great crowd of people. The fire burned for some time, but the firemen were able to get it under control. The fire was caused by a gas stove, and the firemen were able to get it under control.

HENRY GEORGE HOME AGAIN.

Welcomed by the National Single-Tax Conference Delegates. To Be Tendered a Grand Reception at Cooper Union To-Night.

Henry George, the single-taxer, was welcomed by the National Single-Tax Conference delegates. He was to be tendered a grand reception at Cooper Union to-night. The conference was held at the Cooper Union, and the delegates were welcomed by the single-taxers.

He looked extremely well, and was naturally at ease in a new New-England mixed tweed suit and a new London square-top, broad-brimmed hat. In the lapel of his coat he wore the red, white and blue single-tax club button.

At this time attention was attracted to two men who were extremely industrious in their efforts to save life and get within reaching distance of the money boxes of the saloons, and they were watched carefully. The third alarm sounded about 10 o'clock p. m. for a blaze in Mrs. O'Brien's cellar, corner of Pacific and Smith streets.
